Number of visits per month A snapshot of July 2018 - 2022

In order to create a more equitable future for everyone in Ottawa, we need leaders who will prioritize ending food insecurity.

In July 2018, the Ottawa Food Bank and its network reported 18,553 visits to community and emergency food banks across the city. In July 2022, there were 28,449.

This represents an increase in need of 54%.

We are extremely concerned about the impacts of poverty on our community - a combination of low income, precarious work and housing, and unaffordability has resulted in a food insecurity crisis in Ottawa.

This data only includes 27 community food banks and does not include food cupboards, meal programs, After4 programs, or multi-service programs.*
