

Caldwell Family Centre

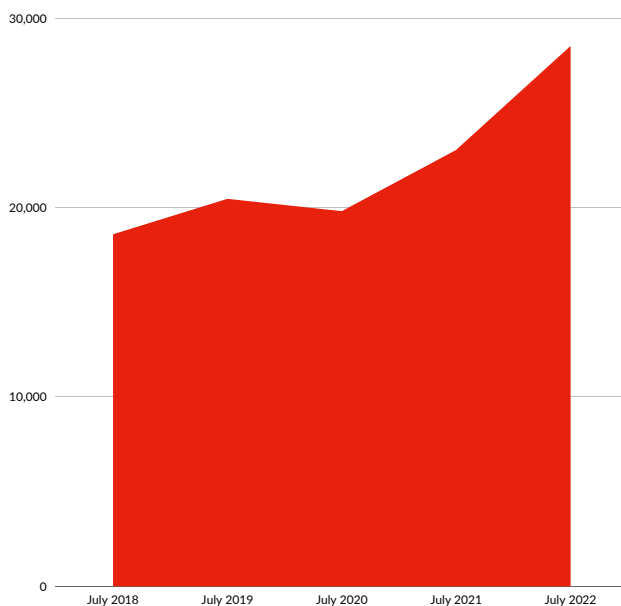

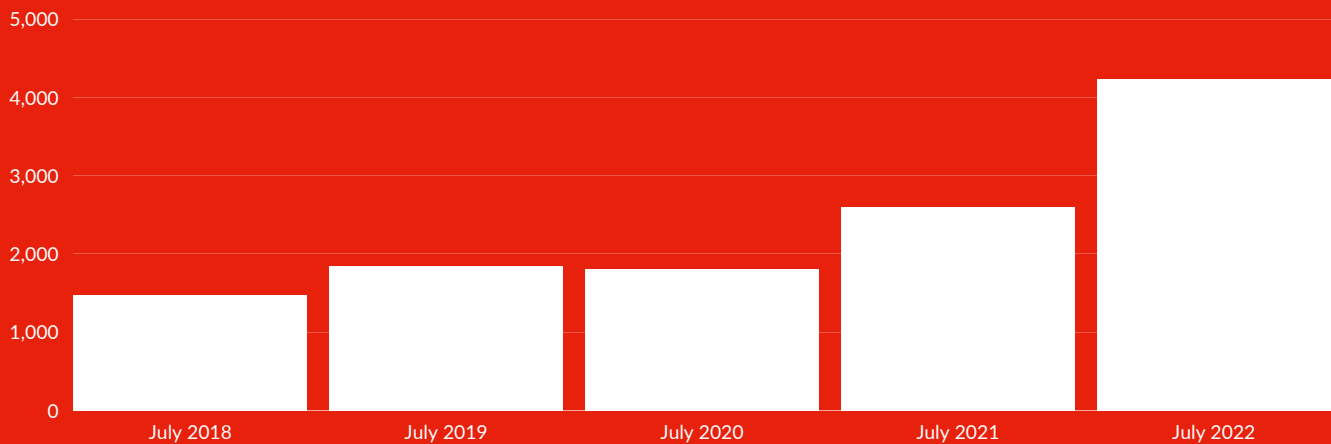

Ottawa Food Bank

The Caldwell Family Centre plays a critical role in supporting residents of Ottawa who are impacted by poverty. In collaboration with partners, they strive to meet clients' needs in a wide variety of areas, including food security, social engagement, child and youth programming and vocational support.

Learn more about Caldwell Family Centre

Number of visits per month A snapshot of July 2018 - 2022

In order to create a more equitable future for everyone in Ottawa, we need leaders who will prioritize ending food insecurity.

In July 2018, the Ottawa Food Bank and its network reported 18,553 visits to community and emergency food banks across the city. In July 2022, there were 28,449.

This represents an increase in need of 54%.

We are extremely concerned about the impacts of poverty on our community - a combination of low income, precarious work and housing, and unaffordability has resulted in a food insecurity crisis in Ottawa.

This data only includes 27 community food banks and does not include food cupboards, meal programs, After4 programs, or multi-service programs.*

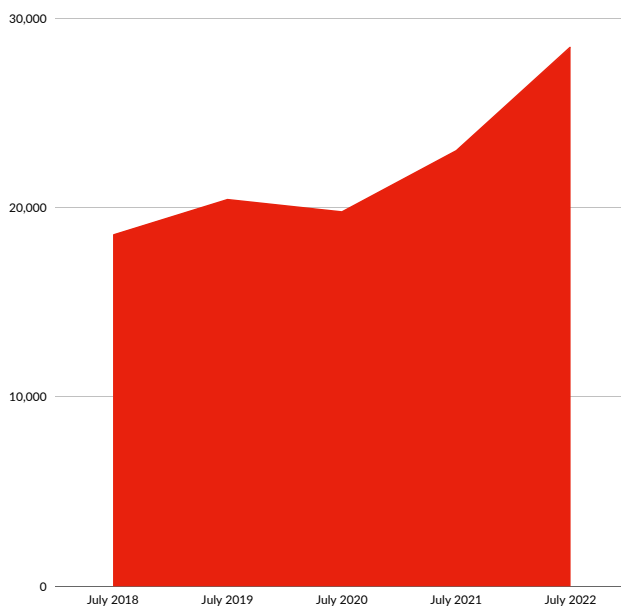

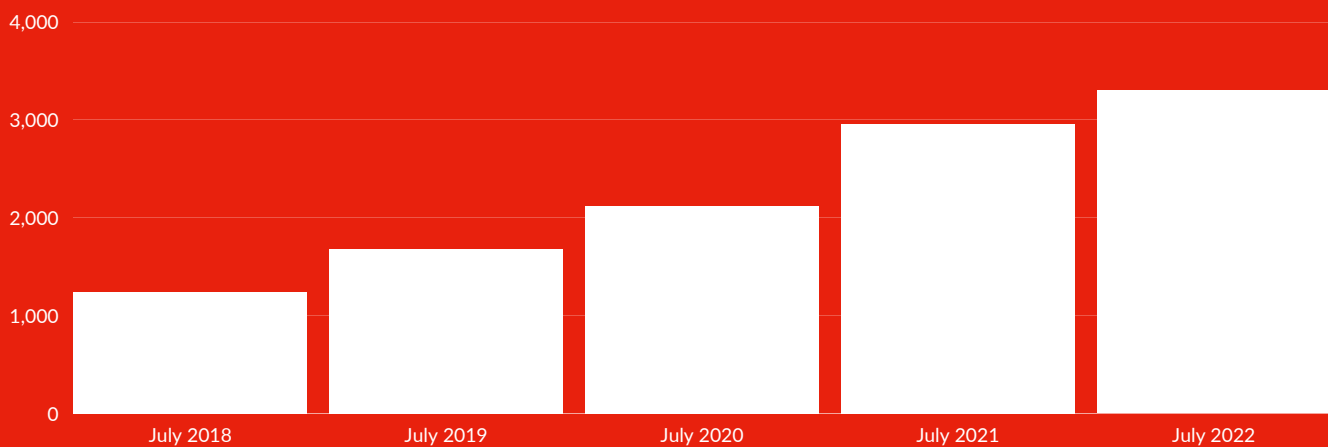

Ottawa Food Bank

Debra Dynes Family House

The Debra Dynes Family House is committed to improving the quality of life for multi-cultural diverse families, children and youth who are low income and working poor, through a range of services and programs that are community driven and meet their needs.

Learn more about Debra Dynes Family House

Number of visits per month A snapshot of July 2018 - 2022

In order to create a more equitable future for everyone in Ottawa, we need leaders who will prioritize ending food insecurity.

In July 2018, the Ottawa Food Bank and its network reported 18,553 visits to community and emergency food banks across the city. In July 2022, there were 28,449.

This represents an increase in need of 54%.

We are extremely concerned about the impacts of poverty on our community - a combination of low income, precarious work and housing, and unaffordability has resulted in a food insecurity crisis in Ottawa.

This data only includes 27 community food banks and does not include food cupboards, meal programs, After4 programs, or multi-service programs.*

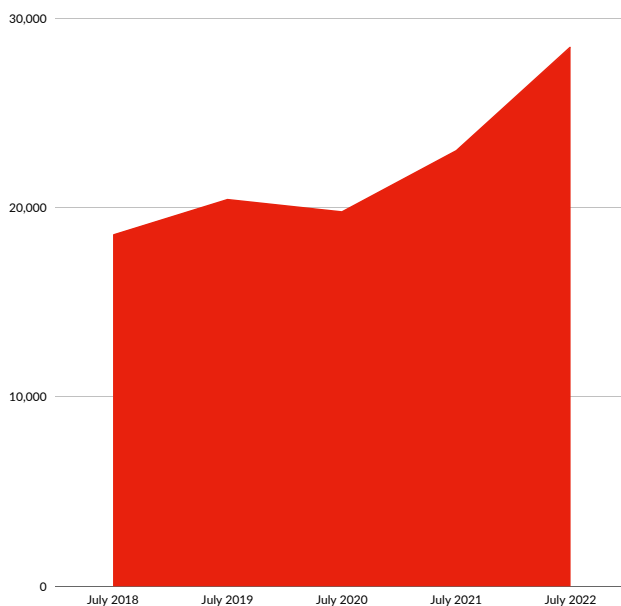

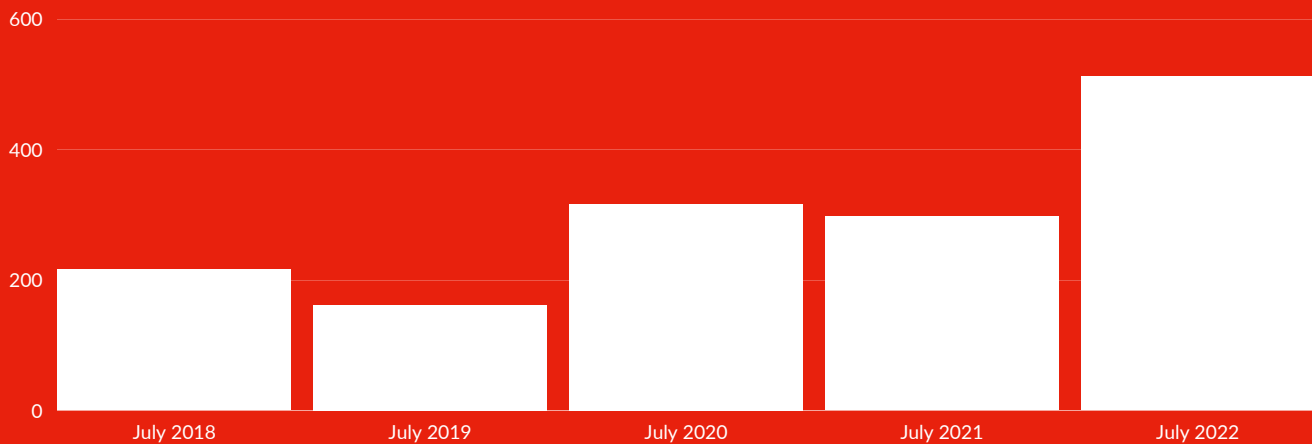

Ottawa Food Bank

Banff Avenue Community House

Banff Avenue Community House is a grassroots, charitable organization located in the heart of a social housing community in South Keys offering programs, services and supports that are beneficial to our neighbours.

Learn more about Banff Avenue Community House

Number of visits per month A snapshot of July 2018 - 2022

In order to create a more equitable future for everyone in Ottawa, we need leaders who will prioritize ending food insecurity.

In July 2018, the Ottawa Food Bank and its network reported 18,553 visits to community and emergency food banks across the city. In July 2022, there were 28,449.

This represents an increase in need of 54%.

We are extremely concerned about the impacts of poverty on our community - a combination of low income, precarious work and housing, and unaffordability has resulted in a food insecurity crisis in Ottawa.

This data only includes 27 community food banks and does not include food cupboards, meal programs, After4 programs, or multi-service programs.*